Introduction:

As consumers we often ponder how stores are always adequately supplied with goods and services and why certain products and services are sold at specific prices. Firms, contemplate why some products are selling rapidly while other products sit on the shelf. Microeconomics focuses on the analysis of the workings of supply and demand in the determination of price, resource allocation, and distribution. We will examine how certain decisions and behaviors affect the supply and demand for goods and services, which determine prices, and how prices, in turn, determine the quantity supplied and quantity demanded of goods and services. Additionally, how sensitive are consumers and firms to price changes? We will analyze how the level of sensitivity to prices can have a profound effect on the amount of output of goods and services not only from a consumer perspective but also from a business perspective. Finally we will discuss the various industry structures and how each structure influences the output and price of goods and services.

Syllabus

Attendance:

Students are expected to attend all classes; your grades will suffer if you miss my lectures. Some topics not covered in the textbook will be introduced in lectures and you will be held responsible for them on exams. Moreover, experience tells me that students who miss class regularly do not perform well on exams. Lastly, students are responsible for being aware of any and all announcements that are made in class. If you expect to miss more than one or two classes because of illness or a family emergency, please use the University absence reporting website <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/> to indicate the date and reason for your absence. An email is automatically sent to me.
